LIBRARY CATALOGUE

COMPILED BY

THEODORE BESTERMAN

HONORARY LIBRARIAN

PRINTED IN GREAT BRITAIN BY ROBERT MACLEHOSE AND CO. LTD.
THE UNIVERSITY PRESS GLASGOW

PREFACE

THE Society's Library has been completely re-organised during the past year. The books have been arranged on the shelves by subject and date, many useless ones having been turned out; the important collection of pamphlets has been classified and bound, as have been several hundred books; new bookcases have been fitted; and, finally, the present catalogue has been compiled on a detailed and uniform plan.

During the next few years the Library can anticipate a further and considerable increase in usefulness: the result of a generous grant of £250 a year for four years made by the Carnegie United Kingdom Trust for the purchase of books and the like. At the end of this period those borrowing works, or consulting them in the Society's Rooms, will have at their disposal a thoroughly representative collection of books, pamphlets and periodicals on psychical research and on the neighbouring departments of psychology and philosophy.

This development will involve, for some time, a great many changes in the disposition of the books on the shelves. For this reason the press-marks have not been printed in the present catalogue, and it is therefore at present impossible, without reference to the Library itself, to distinguish those books which are available for reference only, and not for borrowing. Such books are kept in cases 11 and 12 and on shelves i. and k. of case 10.

In the explanatory notes attached to many of the entries, the books have been described as far as possible in the words of their writers, and the Society does not, of course, accept responsibility for such statements. Where, for instance, a book is described as consisting of automatic writings, this should be understood to mean that a statement to this effect is contained in the book itself.

These explanatory notes comprise, further, a reference to the volume and page of the Society's Journal or Proceedings in which a given work may have been reviewed (not more than a dozen books and pamphlets so reviewed are lacking from the Library); a note to that effect where a work contains an inscription by the author and where it contains a bibliography; and, in the case of pamphlets offprinted from, or forming part of, a periodical, an exact reference to that periodical (these particulars have been successfully traced in all but some half-a-dozen cases).

A word of thanks is due to Messrs MacLehose for the speed and accuracy with which they have carried out the printing of the Catalogue.

LIBRARY RULES

I. The Library is open every weekday from 10.30 a.m. to 5.30 p.m., except Saturdays, when it closes at 1 p.m. The Library is closed from Christmas Eve to New Year's Day, inclusive; from the Thursday before Good Friday to the following Tuesday, inclusive; on Bank Holidays; and during the summer vacation.

II. The Library is open to all Members and Associates of the Society, but books may be borrowed by Members only. Associates may borrow books on payment of 5s. for One Month or 10s. for Three Months.

III. Readers have direct access to all the books in the Library, and are particularly requested not to replace volumes on the shelves.

IV. Borrowers are required to fill up and sign a voucher for each book taken out. The vouchers are cancelled and returned to the borrower when the books are returned, and borrowers are held responsible for the books so long as their vouchers remain uncanceled. Books may be requisitioned by post, in which case vouchers will be sent and should be returned completed.

V. The usual number of volumes allowed to each borrower is Three, and the usual time One Month, except in the case of books much in request, which are allowed for shorter periods. Books may be allowed for a longer period, on application being made, if they are not required by another borrower. Special arrangements may also be made for borrowers requiring a larger number of volumes.

VI. Any volume may be called in at any time with seven days' notice from the Librarian.

VII. Old books and books of special value or such as it would be difficult to replace if lost can only be lent out by special permission, on application being made in advance.

VIII. Borrowers are required to pay the carriage of all books sent to them. All books sent to the Library must be well packed and prepaid. Borrowers are held responsible for any delay, loss or damage to books in transit to the Library.

IX. Marking any book, whether by writing, turning down the leaves or otherwise, is strictly prohibited.

Death-Watch, The. Dialogues upon Spirits ; or, a curious, interesting and entertaining disquisition on the important question relating to the real appearance of departed souls, and their power of making their second appearance into the world. Containing also, among other singular opinions, a clear discussion of the various unsettled notions, ancient and modern, relating to their power and possibility of revisiting this world, to warn their friends, or perform such other acts, as the inscrutable ways of providence may direct. The whole exemplified with various examples, verified by persons of credibility. Also several stories of chimerical impressions—wonderful effects of fear—artful impostures—somnambulism—and the strange effects of the imagination in hypochondriac persons. Ghost, The, or a minute account of the appearance of the ghost of John Croxford executed at Northampton, August the 4th, 1764, for the murder of a stranger; wherein many particulars relative to that affair, and known only to the parties concerned, are now first made public from the confession of the ghost. And to render this performance as useful as possible, is shown in a concise manner, the being a God, the certainty of a resurrection and the state of the soul, between death and judgment; as also the doctrine of spirits deduced from Scripture, the philosophy thereof explained, and their use and tendency in the course of this world clearly determined; with many other interesting particulars naturally arising from this subject. Minister of the Gospel, A, The Ghost, or A Minute account of the appearance of the ghost of John Croxford executed at Northampton, August the 4th, 1764, for the murder of a stranger ; wherein many particulars relative to that affair, and known only to the parties concerned, are now first made public from the confession of the ghost. And to render this performance as useful as possible, is shown in a concise manner, the being of a God, the certainty of a resurrection and the state of the soul, between death and judgment ; as also the doctrine of spirits deduced from Scripture, the philosophy thereof explained, and their use and tendency in the course of this world clearly determined ; with many other interesting particulars naturally arising from this subject. By a Minister of the Gospel near Northampton, personally concern'd in the conference with Croxford's Ghost. 4to, pp. 38. 1764.

View of the Invisible World, A : or, General History of Apparitions. Collected from the best authorities, both antient and modern, and attested by authors of the highest reputation and credit. Illustrated with a variety of notes and parallel cases ; in which some account of the nature and cause of departed spirits visiting their former stations by returning again into the present world, is treated in a manner different to the prevailing opinions of mankind. And an attempt is made from rational principles, to account for the species of supernatural appearances, when they may be supposed consistent with the Divine appointment in the government of the world. With the sentiments of Monsieur Le Cleric, Mr Locke, Mr Addison and others, on this important subject. In which, some humerous and diverting instances are remarked, in order to divert that gloom of melancholy that naturally arises in the human mind from reading or meditating on these subjects. Illustrated with suitable cuts. 8vo, pp. xvi. 315. [iv], 4 plates. London 1752.
