Julius waited eagerly in line to be served. The queue stretches all the way through the market, down the road and around the corner.

It would be worth the wait...

Everyone calls me Pinky.

I surround myself with things that won't make me stinky.

My sister insists that I play games at night.

I'd rather spend my time fantasizing about
Mr. Right.

Nina, my niece, begs on the floor. Should I give in?
I think I'll ignore.
