Atropa genus

BELLADONNA

Also known as "Deadly nightshade".

All parts of this plant are poisonous.
It contains the alkaloids atropine, hyoscyamine
and scopolamine.

Used as poison by Romans.

Applied
in ointments
causes visions,
lightness and the
sensation of flying. Also euphoria.

2.

In the language
of flowers, it
means silence
or falsehood.

3.

The highest concentration of alkaloids
is on the leaves and berries

Medical use:
Relaxes muscles,
reduces spasms.
Dilates pupils.
In high doses
causes death.

One of the ingredients
in flying ointment
