INDIANA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ENDORSES
ALAN MORRISON FOR INDIANA HOUSE

Indianapolis, IN – The Indiana Chamber of Commerce announced today its endorsement of Alan Morrison for the Republican primary election to the Indiana House of Representatives, District 42. The endorsement was made by Indiana Business for Responsive Government (IBRG), the non-partisan political program of the Indiana Chamber.

“Alan Morrison is a truly genuine and hard-working person who cares deeply about people, his district, and getting things done to ramp-up economic growth and job creation,” said Jeff Brantley, vice president of political affairs for the Indiana Chamber of Commerce. “The voters of House District 42 will be very well served by Alan Morrison as their next state representative.”

“I am excited to receive the endorsement of the Indiana Chamber of Commerce. I am running because it is time for West Central Indiana to have a representative in the Statehouse who will lead from the front, with vision for the future and the drive to get there,” said Alan Morrison.

Morrison is the assistant director of athletic facilities for the Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology. House District 42 includes portions of Clay, Fountain, Parke, Vermillion, Vigo and Warren Counties in west-central Indiana. Morrison faces off against two challengers for the May 8th Republican primary election. No incumbent legislator is running for the seat.

The Indiana Chamber has been the state’s leading business organization for 90 years, representing over 800,000 Hoosier workers through nearly 5,000 member companies across Indiana.
