About ALPSP

ALPSP is the international trade association which supports and represents not-for-profit organizations that publish scholarly and professional content, and those that work with them.

What we do

- Bring together people and organizations throughout the industry
- Strengthen and raise the profile of the scholarly publishing community
- Represent the interests of the sector, and not-for-profit publishers globally through involvement in a range of policy work
- Provide impartial information and advice
- Share knowledge and promote best practice
- Offer professional development and networking opportunities

“ For me, ALPSP is the best way to connect to the wider publishing industry.

Emma Huck, Taylor & Francis

“ ALPSP is my go-to resource for academic publishing: excellent training, webinars, events and mentorship scheme!

Elsa Carron, Frontiers

“ The annual conference is a fantastic opportunity to network with our publisher clients and to learn about emerging technologies and trends in our sector, and for the sharing of ideas and experience within the publishing community.

Michael Evans, The Charlesworth Group

“ Thank you so much. It was a fab course and interesting to engage with the wider academic publishing community.

Eilidh Reid, Oxford University Press

*Low Income Countries/Lower Middle Income Countries

One of the upsides of the shift to remote work and training has been the ALPSP events offered virtually. While my organization was unable to send staff members to in person training courses out of the country, this year many team members have been able to attend ALPSP virtual training sessions. These have been topically appropriate and immediately applicable in the workplace.

Rose Sokol-Chang,
American Psychological Association

ALPSP has really given me that opportunity to meet new people, to learn more about other specific areas by attending training, and by giving me a complete update about what is going on in the industry.

Emily Horne,
Wiley
