

United States Government
Compendium of Interagency and Associated Terms

(a non-official guide to Department Dictionaries and other terminology sources)
Washington DC, November 2019

PREFACE

1. Scope

The United States Government Compendium of Interagency and Associated Terms (USG Compendium) identifies standard terminology experienced in cooperation activities of the Federal branches of government and their components. These organizational terms, together with their definitions, provide an overview of existing terminology for general understanding by all USG components. doctrine, delivering advice, or creating plans and facilitating training and exercises. This compendium is in itself not authoritative, but instead compiles authoritative definitions from a variety of authoritative sources as an aid to the USG.

2. Purpose

This document was founded on the demand of the Joint Doctrine Interorganizational Clearinghouse participants/staff officers to improve communication and mutual understanding within the federal government to increase efficiencies among and between workforces. As identified in multiple fora (e.g. conferences, workshops), interagency representatives expressed the need for terms with definitions that have useful, consistent, inclusive and exclusive meaning. Starting with the Departments of Defense and Homeland Security Dictionaries, this document begins that discussion by inventorying organizational terms and definitions from both legislative (US Code) and executive branches of government (Department and Agency Strategic Plans). This document is not intended to be an all-inclusive compilation of interagency terms, nor does it recommend one term over others. It is to be used as a guide only, and in no event will it become a vehicle for establishing or interpreting policy or doctrine for unified action of the work forces. It is published with the understanding that it not be definitive of the mission or function of any of department. The terms and definitions are not binding to the US Government. This document not intended to be used as a legal document nor reflect all the relevant statutory provisions, regulations or other guidance. Since definitions are presented without context, readers are advised to go to the original source listed for context.

3. Application

This document can be used as an aid when preparing correspondence or documents (e.g. policy, strategy, doctrine, legal, advisory, and planning), or facilitating training, education, and exercises.

4. Format

The primary parts of the USG Compendium are:

- a. Explanatory notes.
- b. Part I - terms and definitions.

- c. Part II - thematic lists.

5. Revision

Future editions of the USG Compendium will be updated based on upon properly formatted new or modified material submitted by individual departments and agencies to supporting editors of the Admissions Committee and by annual reviews according to demand. This document contains approximately 14,700 terms selected from a larger preliminary list. Each term was chosen for its interagency significance. This document does not attempt to replace a list of similar terms with a single definition. This collection did identify redundant terms with multiple definitions. Our evaluation is that organizations should consider pursuing legislative changes to identify a single and useful USG definition for broad and informative terms. USG organizations are responsible for providing updates to Department of Defense/Joint Chiefs of Staff/George Katsos/Senior Editor through the Joint Staff's Annual Call Memo request to Executive Secretariats for consideration.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

1. Updates

Per guidance founded in the Joint Doctrine Interorganizational Clearinghouse directed Terminology Working Group, terminology changes to the USG Compendium (additions, modifications, or deletions of interagency terminology) are approved using one of the following methods:

- a. USG terminology proposals approved by the Editorial Staff from federal agencies and the National Security Council that include dictionaries, lexicons, and glossaries.
- b. USG terminology captured in senior level executive branch specific memoranda.
- c. Approved administrative changes/ updates by the Senior Editor.

2. Criteria

The USG Compendium reflects terms and definitions in Federal department dictionaries and other senior-level documents with standard terminology for interagency and associated use as well as in dedicated sections of laws and other relevant documents. Accordingly, the following standing operating procedure criteria determine the acceptability of terminology for inclusion in the USG Compendium:

- a. The term and definition are singled out in a dedicated section of organizational material.
- b. The term and definition does not cross reference other terms nor references/ sends the reader to other locations for clarity outside of the term.
- c. It is understood that the reader will look beyond the term and definition at the original source to determine context.
- d. The terms and definition exist in organizational documents approved at a senior level of management.
- e. Terms and definitions must be unclassified and from unclassified sources so that all users can access original documents.

3. Structure

The USG Compendium is separated into two parts (I - alphabetization of terms, and II - thematic lists.) The requirement is on the reader to analyze individual terms by viewing the original source placed in the document following each term and definition before comparing with similar terms or using in other documents.

a. Alphabetized list of generic and/or organizational terms. These terms are accompanied with a source and date. The date reflects issuance per Presidential policies with the rest as dates of entry into this document.

b. Four thematic lists are categorized as follows to expose readers to terms and definitions related to foreign and domestic activities:

- 1) Domestic Support - All-Hazard Emergency Management
- 2) Domestic Support - Homeland Security
- 3) Foreign Support - Humanitarian and Sustainable Development Assistance
- 4) Foreign Support - Stabilization and Security Assistance
- 5) Administrative Terms - Commonly used within Interagency Discussions

c. Thematic lists are introduced by coordination mechanisms that show arranged interaction and potential cooperation between workforces:

1) Domestic Coordination - National Response Framework and National Disaster Recovery Framework

2) Foreign Coordination - Notional United States Government Provide Support to Foreign United States Government Activities

4. Strategic Effect Terms

Departments and Agencies normally define mission task terms (n - deterrence, stabilization, etc.) instead of strategic effect terms (v) to avoid confusion within and between mission areas and levels of engagement. For strategic effect terms the standard dictionary definition often applies. The following is a lengthy but not whole inclusive list of strategic effect terms: advance, assure, coerce, compete, compel, contain, deceive, defeat, degrade, delay, delegitimize, deny, destroy, deter, discredit, disable, discourage, disrupt, divert, engage, enhance, integrate, isolate, kill, maintain, manage, neutralize, prevent, protect, stabilize, suppress, synchronize.

5. Shortened Word Forms

This version of the USG Compendium will not include shortened word forms (e.g. abbreviations, acronyms, and initialisms). For a condensed list of interagency shortened forms see the DOD Dictionary found at (<http://www.jcs.mil/Doctrine/DOD-Terminology-Program/>) the FEMA Acronyms, Abbreviations & Terms (FAAT) List (https://www.fema.gov/pdf/plan/prepare/faatlist07_09.pdf), the Foreign Assistance Manual and associated Handbooks (<https://fam.state.gov/>), and the USAID Automated Directives System (ADS) (<https://www.usaid.gov/sites/default/files/documents/1868/glossary.pdf>).

6. Joint Guide for Interagency Doctrine

Released in October 2019 and available at the Joint Electronic Library, this inaugural document contains USG structures, frameworks, relevant coordination mechanisms, force employment observations, organizational areas of responsibility regions, and notional framework mapping constructs. Moreover, the Joint Guide expands upon current knowledge and can assist in the strategic art of navigating the USG bureaucracy to make USG workforces work more efficiently together in achieving policy objectives.

| child - an unmarried person under 21 years of age. a. Bases for Child Status - (1) INA lists seven categories of the term child; (2) Previously, the term child as used at INA (D) was interpreted to require a genetic connection between the child and the parent. However, such an interpretation did not adequately account for advances in assisted reproductive technology (ART). Consequently, a new policy was adopted in 2014 to allow birth mothers (also referred to as gestational mothers) who are also the legal parent of the child to be treated the same as genetic mothers for the purpose of qualifying for immigration benefits. The new policy is retroactive. If you encounter a case in which the child born abroad to a gestational and legal mother was previously denied an immigration benefit under prior interpretation, the child potentially would be eligible for an immigration benefit upon the submission of a new application accompanied by appropriate fees and sufficient evidence that he or she meets all relevant statutory and regulatory requirements. (A petition according preference status must be regarded as approved to accord immediate relative status if the beneficiary has been declared a child of the petitioner by private legislation. You should regard such a petition as approved for that purpose as of the date of the enactment of the private legislation or of the effective date stated in the language of the private law. | Child Born Out of Wedlock - a. Child Through the Mother Under INA - (1) A child born out of wedlock is the child of the natural mother under INA. The natural mothers name on the child's birth certificate may be taken as proof of such relationship. (2) The term natural mother in INA includes a gestational mother who is the legal mother of a child at the time and place of birth, as well as genetic mother who is a legal mother of the child at the time and place of birth. Also see the note regarding assisted reproductive technology (ART) above in Bases for Child Status. b. Child Through the Father Under INA - (1) A child born out of wedlock is a child of the natural father under INA, provided the father has or had a bona fide parent-child relationship with the child. While an ongoing father-child relationship is not required to establish a bona fide parent or child relationship, you must ascertain whether a genuine parent or child relationship, not merely a tie by blood, exists or has existed at some point prior to the offsprings 21st birthday and while the offspring is or was unmarried. (2) While each case must be determined based on the facts presented, you must be satisfied that the facts demonstrate the existence of a bona fide parent or child relationship before the child's 21st birthday. For instance, although not necessary, the moral or emotional behavior of the father or child toward each other, which reflects the existence of such a relationship, may constitute favorable evidence of the relationship, just as cohabitation may be another element of evidence of such relationship. | cost distribution system - A system where costs are pooled and then spread to service recipients using a distribution factor. Municipal taxes are a common example of a cost distribution system. Instead of pricing its services on a transaction basis (see cost accounting system), municipal government decides at the beginning of the year what level of fire protection services it can afford. It then estimates the total cost of the fire protection services and divides it among the taxpayers using a factor (typically a rate per $1,000 of real estate value). Normally, the services in the firefighting cost center include extinguishing residential fires, chemical and other potentially toxic fires, vehicle fires, search and rescue, fire code enforcement and fire prevention/education. While municipalities publish the real estate tax rate, they do not provide a predictor or price for the services that a single taxpayer will receive during one year. A fortunate resident might pay taxes and support municipal firefighting for a lifetime without calling the fire department to put out a blaze. A less fortunate resident might be forced to call the fire department multiple times. Both, however, pay the same tax rate. | DOS/USAID, FAH, 6 FAH-5 H-041, Mar 17 |

| exempt employee [essential personnel] (*) - employee in a category of essential personnel in positions that are performing functions or activities that are exempt from work restrictions during a lapse in government appropriations the following activities and/or functions (and the contracts that support them) may continue during a lapse of appropriations: a. Funded by other than annual appropriated funds. Some functions are covered by multi-year, no-year, or revolving funds, or advance appropriation, and if those accounts have sufficient carryover balance, they would not be affected by an annual appropriation lapse. Revolving funds that operate almost entirely on offsetting collections from other Federal entities may also be forced to close, unless sufficient retained earnings are available to forestall the closure. b. Expressly Authorized to Continue Even Without Funding. Congress provides express authority for some agencies to enter into contracts or to borrow funds to accomplish some of their functions despite an appropriations lapse. c. Necessary for Safety of Human Life or Protection of Property. In order to qualify under the exception for safety of life or protection of property a reasonable, articulable connection must exist between the function to be performed and the safety of human life or protection of property. There must be some reasonable likelihood that the safety of human life or protection of property would be threatened in some significant degree by the delay in the performance of the function in question. Specifically, the risk should be real, not hypothetical or speculative, and must be sufficiently imminent that delay is not permissible. d. Any activity and/or function that continues based on a determination that it qualifies for the safety of life or protection of property exception must be limited only to the extent that the Component Head determines that imminent danger to life or property would result from their termination or diminution. As for any administrative, research, or support function related to an exempt activity, that function should also continue, but only to the extent that it is essential to maintain the effectiveness of those activities and/or functions that are engaged for the safety of life or the protection of property. In particular, administrative, research, and other overhead activities supporting exempt activities should be carefully reviewed to make certain their continuance is essential to carrying out the exempt activities. In addition, there must be some reasonable likelihood that the safety of human life or protection of property would be compromised in some significant degree if there were any delay in the performance of the administrative, research, overhead, or support activity that is in question. e. Necessary for the Orderly Closure of Functions. Agencies may obligate funds during periods of lapsed appropriations to bring about the orderly shutdown of non-exempt activities. Contingency plans which call for winding down operations of an agency after an appropriations lapse will comply with the Anti-Deficiency Act. The Office of Management and Budget has determined that the normal winding down of operations should take no more than four hours. During the winding down time, the activities of employees during this period must be wholly devoted to closing down the function and upon completion, these employees would be released. | DHS, DHS Lexicon, Terms, Mar 17 |

| gender - Gender is a social construct that refers to relations between and among the sexes, based on their relative roles. It encompasses the economic, political, and socio-cultural attributes, constraints, and opportunities associated with being male or female. As a social construct, gender varies across cultures, is dynamic and open to change over time. Because of the variation in gender across cultures and over time, gender roles should not be assumed but investigated. Note that “gender” is not interchangeable with “women” or “sex.” | USAID, ADS Glossary, CH 200-203, May 18 |
| gender analysis - Gender analysis refers to the systematic gathering and analysis of information on gender differences and social relations to identify and understand the different roles, divisions of labor, resources, constraints, needs, opportunities/capacities, and interests of men and women (and girls and boys) in a given context. USAID requires that the findings of a gender analysis are used to inform the design of country strategic plans, Development Objectives, and projects. A gender analysis can be conducted at the macro level, analyzing socio-cultural, economic, health, or demographic trends and legal policies and practices at the national or regional level; and/or at the micro level, examining gender relations, roles, and dynamics at the community or household level within the context provided by the macro analysis. Taking a macro or micro focus depends on the purpose for which the analysis is being undertaken. For example, a gender analysis conducted to inform a country strategic plan will most likely assess the issues from a broader, more macro level, whereas a gender analysis conducted for the design of a project/activity, may look at the issues from both a macro and micro perspective. | USAID, ADS Glossary, CH 200, May 18 |
| gender assessment - Gender assessment involves carrying out a review, from a gender perspective, of an organization’s programs and its ability to monitor and respond to gender issues in both technical programming and institutional policies and practices. If a gender analysis is included in a gender assessment, this meets the ADS requirements. It signifies the outcomes that result from gender equity strategies and processes. | USAID, ADS Glossary, CH 200-203, May 18 |
| gender equity - The process of being fair to women and men. To ensure fairness, measures must often be available to compensate for historical and social disadvantages that prevent women and men from otherwise operating on a level playing field. Equity leads to equality. gender integration Involves identifying and then addressing gender differences during strategic planning, project design, implementation, and monitoring and evaluation. Since the roles and relations of power between men and women affect how a project is implemented, it is essential that USAID staff address these issues on an ongoing basis. USAID uses the term gender integration in planning and programming. | USAID, ADS Glossary, CH 200, May 18 |
