Lifelong learning in the new economic order

With constant change emerging as the new global norm in the 21st century, both individuals and organizations have come to the realization that in order to survive – let alone thrive – they must enhance their knowledge and skills to meet ever rising demands, and adjust themselves to rapidly changing needs.

As technology is driving changes in an increasingly complex and globalized world, it has become an absolute necessity to embrace lifelong learning if we are to keep up with the way people are sourcing and receiving information, and communicating and collaborating with one another. The market these days simply leave behind those who are obstinate to change or lose touch with reality.

Nowadays, formal training merely sets the foundation in the learning process; it must be supplemented and updated with the latest modern management practices and technological know-how. Indeed, most professions mandate that their members have to earn their license to practise through continuous learning.

With an ever-expanding pool of well-qualified candidates, employers are increasingly looking for outstanding personal traits, specialized skills and technical competence in their selection process. Those with global perspectives and networking flair could very well tip the scale in their favor.

This guide contains a wealth of updated information on a wide range of innovative programs that could pave the way for your career progression and personal development.

Pursue excellence in the intellectual world of Arts and Humanities

Prof. Derek Collins,
Dean, Faculty of Arts,
The University of Hong Kong

The University of Hong Kong's renowned Faculty of Arts is offering a diversity of Taught Postgraduate Programmes to foster lifelong learning in the community.

With its unique position as an international city, Hong Kong harbours a wealth of artistic heritage from both the East and West, and is a cultural melting pot that is endlessly fascinating.

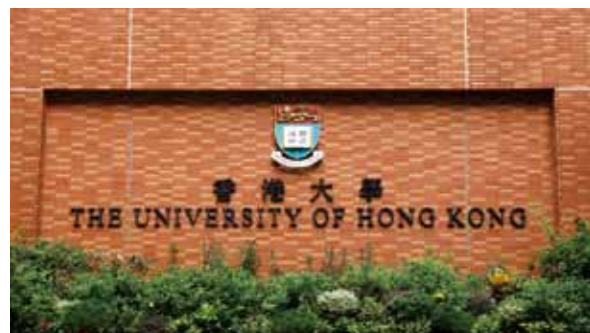

The University of Hong Kong's Faculty of Arts is dedicated to attracting and nurturing outstanding scholars and students from around the world. Students are guided to engage in innovative, high-impact, and leading-edge research within and across the humanities and other disciplines in a flexible and pluralistic intellectual environment that fosters creativity and freedom of thought and expression, and nurtures leaders who are committed to contributing to the betterment of the society of Hong Kong, the region, and the world at large.

Why HKU Faculty of Arts?

In addition to being one of the University of Hong Kong's flagship faculties, the Faculty of Arts is also internationally renowned, holding a number of prestigious accolades. It is ranked 1st in Asia and 19th in the world for Arts and Humanities in the U.S. News & World Report Best Global Universities 2022. It is also ranked 2nd in Asia and 1st in Hong Kong in Arts and Humanities in the Times Higher Education World University Subject Rankings 2022; and 3rd in Asia and 1st in Hong Kong in Arts and Humanities in the QS World University Subject Rankings 2021, evidence of its exceptional quality in teaching and research. Its Taught Postgraduate Programmes offer a truly international experience as it has a diverse background of local and overseas students, creating an unparalleled platform for learning and networking.

"The Faculty of Arts at the University of Hong Kong is recognised throughout the world as a leading institution for research, teaching, and promoting the cultures of Asia and the West. The Faculty offers various premier Taught Postgraduate Programmes and is committed to serving the lifelong learning needs of the community. We are dedicated to fulfilling our mission to produce graduates with highly developed analytical, linguistic, critical and creative skills for leadership and success in a wide range of professional and life endeavours," said Professor Derek Collins, Dean of the Faculty of Arts, The University of Hong Kong.

Taught Postgraduate Programmes

The University of Hong Kong's Faculty of Arts offers a wide range of Taught Postgraduate Programmes from English Studies to Chinese Language and Literature, Buddhist Studies and more, giving students a chance to explore subjects that truly interest them.

"The curricula which we offer at the Faculty of Arts take on a comparative, cross-cultural and interdisciplinary approach, studying a variety of issues in national and international contexts," said Dr. Wai Ting Siok, Associate Dean (Postgraduate), Faculty of Arts, The University of Hong Kong. "We have an international professoriate staff team including renowned Buddhist scholars which leads the TPG programmes full-time, giving students valuable support and feedback. This allows them to have an inquiry-based learning experience in a research-informed environment. Every programme also has a capstone course with a research component, so students can fully integrate their knowledge and skills and apply them on various projects such as field trips, workshops, and postgraduate student conferences, promoting interactive exchanges."

Cultivating leaders in the transport field

The first and only programme focusing on the transport policy and planning field in the city, the coveted Master of Arts in Transport Policy and Planning (MATPP) programme offered by the University of Hong Kong has gained recognition in Asia with its comprehensive and multi-disciplinary curriculum.

Co-organized by the Department of Geography, the Department of Urban Planning and Design, and the Department of Civil Engineering at the University of Hong Kong, the MATPP programme has been equipping professionals at the executive level with holistic training in the transport sector since its first intake in 1997.

Covering a wealth of major transportation systems, MATPP is designed for professionals who are in pursuit of professional excellence, critical intellectual inquiry and life-long learning in transportation. Through its balanced programme structure, where students have to complete a dissertation, and study seven core courses on basic knowledge and two electives covering specific areas, they will learn how to tackle novel situations and ill-defined problems, uphold professional ethics in transportation and be ready to embark on leading roles in transport policy and planning.

"Transport is about creating convenience for the human population, so our programme is designed to cover both hard and soft sciences involved in the field, with a significant focus on how students can think critically ahead from early planning to maintenance stages to come up with human-centric solutions," said Professor Becky P.Y. Loo, Programme Director of the MATPP programme. "We have a team of highly qualified and experienced teaching staff who are leading experts in the field to keep students abreast of the latest developments in Hong Kong and beyond."

Well situated in Hong Kong, with its unique public transportation systems, MATPP students are also open to the systems of a diversified mix of developed and developing countries like Chile, China, France, Singapore, the UK, and the USA to acquire an international understanding and global outlook in the industry.

"Another defining feature of our programme is that it is professionally accredited both as a CILT Accredited Programme, and RTPI Accredited Specialist Programme, which are internationally recognized, so students graduate with an extra competitive edge," Loo added.

Available for full-time and part-time studies, this flexibility has attracted a steady stream of students who have rich working experience in transport-related sectors like public transport companies, airline and airport businesses, government departments, and consultancy firms.

Apart from the availability of awards and scholarships to cultivate and encourage students' academic excellence, graduates will be in touch with a strong, supportive network of alumni to keep broadening their horizons.

Inhabit Hong Kong's cultural scene

Combining in-depth study with a strong theoretical focus, the University of Hong Kong's (HKU) Master of Arts in Literary and Cultural Studies (MALCS) provides an essential knowledge and skills base for students to cultivate their critical thinking and enhance their understanding of cultures, cinemas, and global issues.

HKU's Master of Arts in Literary and Cultural Studies will engage students in a wide range of theoretical, literary and filmic texts, and explore historical and contemporary issues within frames of modernity and globalization.

After going through the rigorous program, MALCS graduate students will possess critical thinking through engagement with the key debates and texts in literary, film, and cultural studies. Their appreciation of diverse cultural practices and contexts within a global frame will be deepened.

The program also aims to develop skills in critical analysis necessary to carry out independent research in the fields of literary, film, and cultural studies. The training will also provide the knowledge and hone the skills required for advanced degrees and/or enhancement in arts, cultural writing, and other creative practices.

MALCS students are trained to see beyond the local context to understand what is happening in the rest of the world, and to examine issues with a critical eye. Graduates will be equipped with the essential skills for careers in teaching, cultural programming, writing, research, and administrative positions.

Founded in 1994, the program has been training students to demonstrate critical thinking and analytical skills, to expand their appreciation of intercultural relations and cultural forms; and to pursue intellectual inquiry using communication skills as well as analytical skills. The program has strengthened its interdisciplinary approach informed by critical and cultural theories.

As Asia's world city, Hong Kong is a wonderful platform for screen and literary studies because of her unique social, historical, and cultural connections with Mainland China and other Asian countries. Encouraging appreciation of diverse cultural contexts within a global frame and widening students' global perspectives, the program has attracted students from a myriad of cultural backgrounds, such as the US, South America, the UK, Canada, southeast Asia, the mainland, Taiwan and Hong Kong.

Enhancing your professional expertise

The Faculty of Education of The University of Hong Kong (HKU) has assumed an important role in educational research and professional training in the region and internationally, and has been contributing significantly to education policy and development in Hong Kong. As a major teacher-education institution with strong expertise in policy analysis and curriculum development, the Faculty is currently ranked No. 6 in the Times Higher Education (THE) World Rankings by Subject 2022 and No. 7 in the Quacquarelli Symonds (QS) World University Rankings by Subject 2021.

The Faculty offers a wide range of postgraduate programmes for 2022 admissions. Below are some of your choices:

The Doctor of Education (EdD) is a professional doctoral degree programme intended for experienced professionals who are leaders, or aspire to be leaders, in education-related institutions and services. It aims to develop participants' capacity for enquiry and evidence-led decision-making and their ability to translate research findings into usable knowledge.

The Master of Education (MEd) is an academic degree for education professionals who are looking for opportunities to extend their professional knowledge in education. It aims to provide students with a general understanding of education as a field of study and focused mastery of an area of specialisation, and to equip them with knowledge and skills to understand educational research.

The Master of Arts in Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (MA(TESOL)) equips students with a thorough grounding in current research, teaching theory, principles and practices in English language education. It is targeted primarily, but not exclusively, at teachers of English to speakers of other languages.

The Master of Audiology [MSc(Audiology)] provides students with detailed theoretical background knowledge of human hearing and hearing loss, as well as intensive clinical practice in a variety of audiology placements.

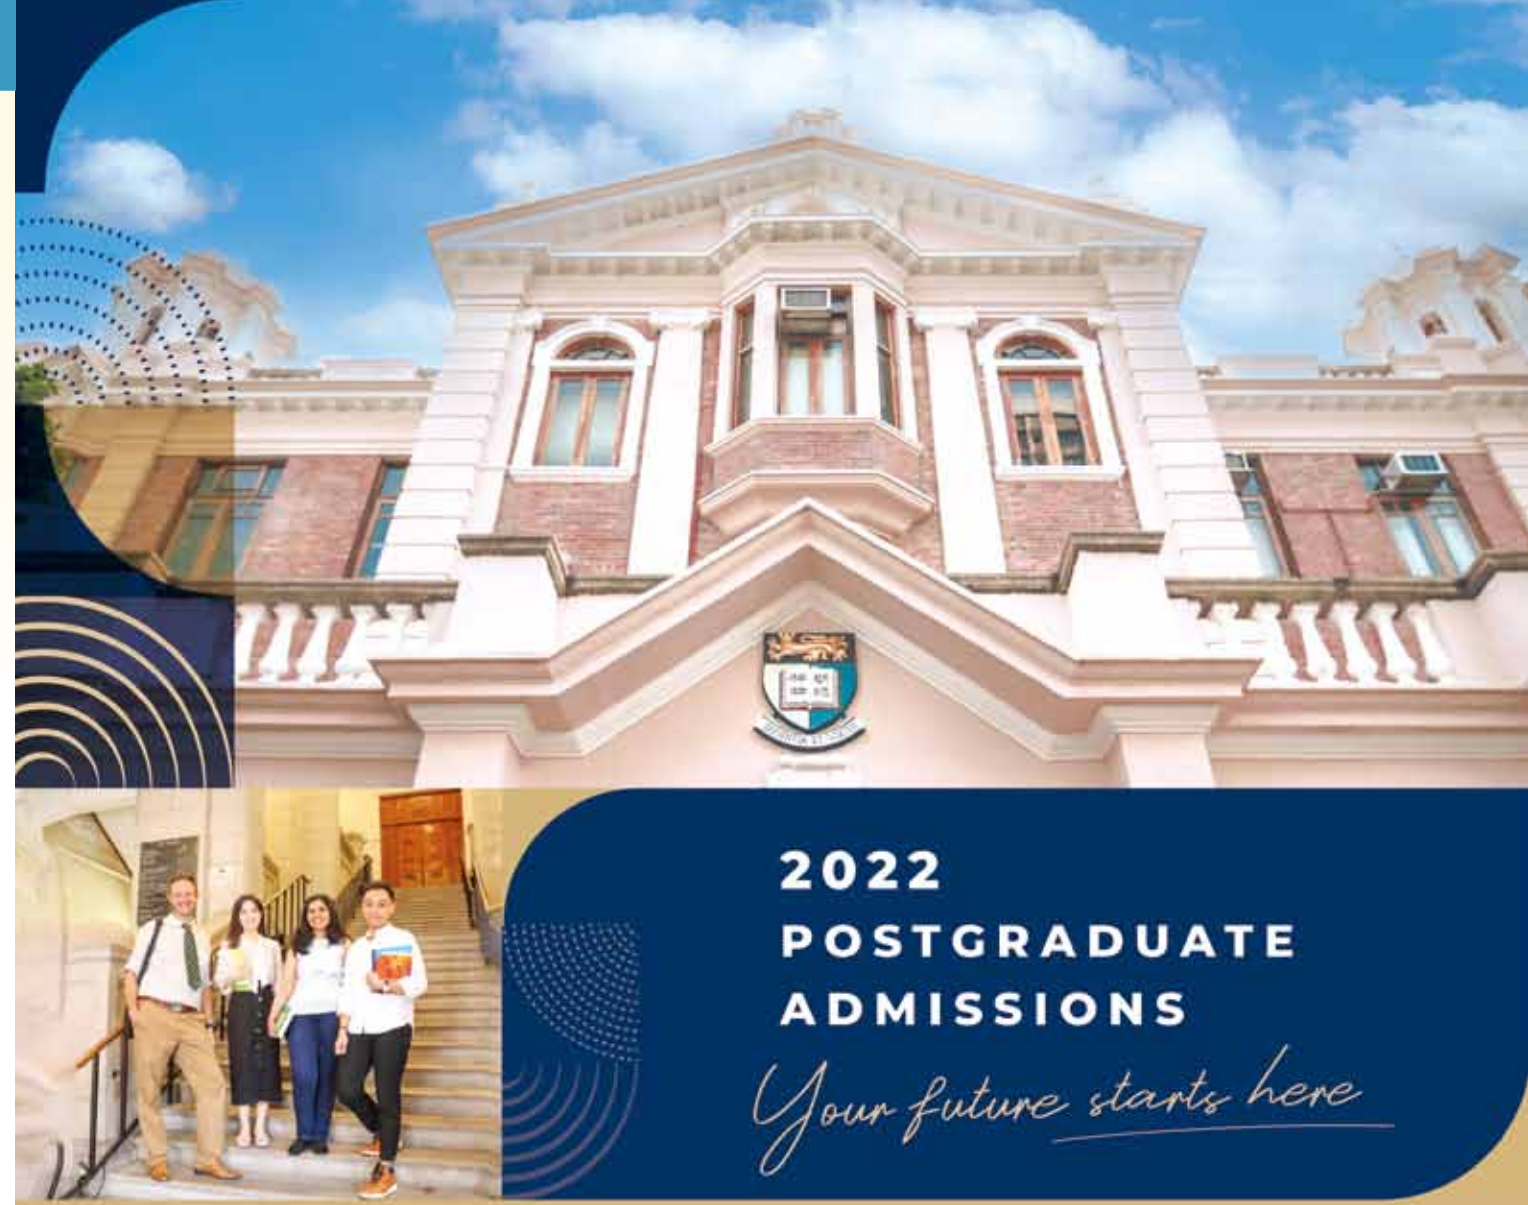

The Master of Science in Information Technology in Education [MSc(ITE)] aims to educate individuals who are interested in the field of information technology in education, and the Master of Science in Library and Information Management [MSc(LIM)] is designed to prepare candidates for professional work in sectors such as information and knowledge, etc. The programmes offer participants theoretical and practical insights and provide a strong foundation in the respective professional areas.

Advance your career via HKU's Master of Science programs

Recognized as one of the most important developments in human society, information technology has undergone phenomenal advances in the last 30 years, bringing huge transformations to our lives and business operations. Today, information technology specialists have become indispensable to companies and organizations, helping to support their operation and growth.

In view of the growing demand for these professionals, the Faculty of Engineering of The University of Hong Kong has introduced three Master's programs in electronic commerce and internet computing, financial technology and data analytics, and computer science, to equip students with up-to-date professional knowledge in these fields.

Master of Science in Electronic Commerce & Internet Computing

Established in September 1999, the MSc(ECom&IComp) program was the first of its kind offered in the Asia Pacific region. The curriculum structure is designed to meet the ever-changing needs of the global business market and offers great flexibility for students to choose the course that matches their interests and professional development.

The courses are taught by world-renowned professors from prestigious universities, as well as information technology experts from the United States and Australia. They bring with them a vast store of knowledge and teaching experience, together with a global vision in sync with the latest trends in the market.

Master of Science in Computer Science

Operating for more than two decades, the MSc(CompSc) program equips students with advanced and in-depth knowledge in Computer Science, assisting them to achieve breakthroughs in work and research.

The best features of the curriculum are its diversity and flexibility. There are four streams of study - Cyber Security, Multimedia Computing, Financial Computing, and General Stream, covering a wide range of subjects from data engineering, cloud computing, blockchain technology, human-computer interaction research, deep learning to the study of financial fraud analytics.

Students can select the programs according to their interests and expertise. They are required to complete 8 courses with a dissertation; or 10 courses with a project.

Master of Science in Financial Technology and Data Analytics

In response to the job market's demand for fintech-related talents, HKU has introduced the MSc(FTDA) program with the aim of training local talents in developing fintech projects, data analysis and network security.

The program has an interdisciplinary curriculum by drawing on the expertise from diverse areas of engineering, business, law, and statistics, with a technology focus. Through the courses, students will gain essential FinTech skills necessary for navigating the changing landscape of the finance industry, as well as knowledge of the hottest industry trends.

HKU Faculty of Engineering – Master's degree curricula engineering a greater future

The Faculty of Engineering is one of the founding faculties of The University of Hong Kong when it was established in 1912. Being one of the largest comprehensive engineering faculties in Hong Kong, it encompasses most if not all disciplines of engineering. Its five departments focus respectively on civil engineering, computer science, electrical and electronic engineering, industrial and manufacturing systems engineering, and mechanical engineering.

The faculty has been providing well-rounded curricula and high-quality engineering education in global knowledge-based economy at undergraduate and postgraduate levels, and making significant contributions to Hong Kong and the engineering community world-wide by training top-rated engineers. The Faculty of Engineering continues to attract the best students from Hong Kong and other parts of the world to study a range of curricula.

The Faculty currently offers 10 master's degree curricula which are taught by high-calibre HKU faculty members, internationally renowned professors from prestigious overseas universities, leading industrialists and practitioners. Updated constantly, these curricula place a strong emphasis on high-quality education and applied research knowledge of professional and practical importance.

In today's fast-changing world, innovation design and technology are the driving force of growth and development. A new programme Master of Science in Engineering Innovative Design and Technology will be offered by HKU Faculty of Engineering in the academic year 2022/23. Our vision is to provide comprehensive knowledge for those who aspire to enter the innovative design and technology industry. The curriculum combines mechanical & high-tech AI technology and provides valuable experiential learning opportunities through 'hands-on' projects. The programme not only contains elements of advanced technologies (e.g. robotics, materials, apps programming, unmanned aerial system, biomedical system and product), but also lectures on areas related to production processes (e.g. Computer-Aided Design and Manufacturing (CAD/CAM), tools and manufacturing system). System control & development (e.g. machine learning, mechatronics and AI) and product sustainability (e.g. security, market aspiration, design strategies, and regulations) are also key topics. To move with the times, it is also important to let our students understand the emerging technologies in STEM for educational purposes, as well as the application of programming and AI in developing future smart cities. Through the course, students are able to grasp innovative technology and lead the development of the industry.

Aiming at maximising each student's learning, "capstone experience", in the form of project or dissertation, etc., is included in each curriculum. The student-driven capstone experience focuses on the integration and application of knowledge and skills that students have acquired throughout their studies.

At the beginning of the academic year, orientation programmes are offered to new students. Career seminars and workshops are organised to introduce to students their career prospects. Recent graduates are also invited to share their experience. Besides, an academic adviser is appointed to each student. Discussions are not limited to academic matters, as students can also seek advice on topics like career development if they need. The Faculty also uses channels like staff-student consultative committees, course evaluations and student learning experience questionnaires to better understand student needs and expectations.

The Faculty is now inviting applications for 2022/23 admissions.
