Introduction

Purpose – To eliminate or reduce the frequency of reports required by state law to be submitted by a state agency or institution of higher education to another state agency or office, without compromise to need of the Governor and the Texas Legislature to be made aware of the activities and financial status of state government.

The 2011 Report lists the report changes from the 81st Legislative Regular Session and evaluations of the reports that have been reviewed.

About The 2007 and 2009 Reports

This report was the successor to a report previously issued by the State Comptroller of Public Accounts. The comptroller's report was never required by statute, but was an outgrowth of the ongoing performance reviews conducted by that office. Those reviews are now carried out by the Legislative Budget Board. The 79th Legislature required the Texas State Library and Archives Commission, by a rider to the General Appropriations Act, to assume the task of compiling the report.

The report of the state comptroller listed required reports without an evaluation of their utility to the conduct of government. The rider transferring the duty to the commission required that the report contain an assessment by each agency that received a report of its usefulness to that agency.

The report issued by the state comptroller issued in April 2004 for the 2004-2005 Biennium was the starting point for this report.

About the 2011 Required State Reports Project

Work Group – A core work group, consisting of representatives from those state agencies or offices that receive the greatest number of reports from other agencies – Office of the Governor, Office of the Lieutenant Governor, Office of the Speaker of the House, Legislative Budget Board, Comptroller of Public Accounts, Texas Workforce Commission, Health and Human Services Commission, and Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board evaluated reports received.

Results of 2009 Legislative Session – The Legislative Council provided lists of all repealed legislation and passed bills that were most likely to include report requirements. These lists were used to review a subset of the many bills passed in 2009 (about 200 out of more than 1,600). This resulted in adding about 100 new reports, removal of 19 repealed reports in this edition, and some other report changes identified in passed bills.

Methodology – The work group reviewed lists of required reports received. This year's assessments were added to the 2009 assessments. Most fall into these categories:

- (1) Is the report useful to the receiving agency? If not, state law could be amended to remove that agency from the list of recipients. If all receiving agencies find that the report is not useful, the requirement for the report could be repealed.
- (2) If the report is useful, could it be combined with another useful report?

- (3) If the report is useful, could the frequency of its submission be reduced? For example, if the report is required semi-annually, could the law be amended to require that it be submitted annually?
 - (4) Is the report obsolete or redundant? If so, state law requiring the report could be repealed.

Reports not included

- Any report required by a rider to the General Appropriations Act
- Any report required by a statute enacted by the 81st Legislature that expires by its own terms on or before September 1, 2011
- Any report required of any agency whose submission is optional
- Routine notifications, notices, and announcements

Recommendations in the 2011 Report

Many of the 2009 assessments remain unchanged. Where new assessment information was added in 2011, the word “2011” precedes new information in the assessment field.

The final report recommends the repeal of some 367 listed reports as the result of meetings and conversations with both preparing and receiving agencies during the development of this all editions of this report. Perhaps, the assessments will result in one or more bills to recommend these changes during the 82nd Legislative session.

The reports recommended for repeal fall into the following categories:

Funds Received and Disbursed Reports – These reports, required of many agencies, date to early statehood, before the days of not only computers, but also of typewriters, back to a time when ledger books were added to as needed in longhand. These reports have been superseded by the Annual Financial Report, required of all state agencies and institutions of higher education.

Equal Employment Opportunity Policies – These policies appear in the enabling legislation of most state agencies. They were formerly filed with the Texas Commission on Human Rights, which was abolished in 1993 and its functions transferred to the newly formed civil rights division of the Texas Workforce Commission. The existing statutes regarding these policies remain contradictory, requiring the Texas Workforce Commission to report on the policies filed by some agencies, but not on all, with no reasonable distinction made between those that are reported upon and those that are not. The workgroup recommends the repeal of equal employment opportunity policy requirements in the enabling legislation of individual agencies and the consolidation of the requirement, free of the current ambiguities, in an appropriate section of the Labor Code.

Reports That Have Expired By their Own Terms – There are report requirements in state law, many of which were enacted in the 1990s, that expired on a date given in the same section of law that required the report. While these reports are no longer filed, the workgroup believes that it is good public policy that state law be uncluttered by unneeded or moribund statutes and, thus, recommends their repeal.

Reports Whose Due Date Has Expired – Some statutes require the filing of a report by a state agency by a certain date, since passed, but without provision that the requirement for the report expired. Again, the workgroup recommends that it is good public policy that provisions in law of this type be repealed.

Special Issue Reports – When the legislature places a state agency under close and careful watch, it usually does so through riders to the General Appropriations Act, requiring the agency to submit additional reports, and often at greater frequency than is normally required. Occasionally, however, reports of this type are enacted into general law, where they have a tendency to remain long after the issues that gave rise to the heightened legislative scrutiny have been resolved. These reports, unless there is a need for their continued submission, should be repealed.

Reports of Abolished Agencies – Periodically the legislature either abolishes an agency outright or abolishes it and transfers its duties to another state agency. Sometimes two or more agencies are combined into a single agency. Bills giving effect to abolitions and transfers always have the customary provisions stating where all of the powers, duties, responsibilities, and so on of the abolished or transferred agency belong now to ensure the smooth transition of function and authority. In most instances, however, there is no follow up. Statutes relating to an abolished agency, along with any reporting requirements, remain a part of state law and the statutes governing the agency that assumes the functions of the abolished agency are not amended to reflect its new duties. The workgroup recommends that the legislature, in the public interest, be more mindful of the need to amend state law to reflect the current structure of state agencies and their duties.

The report identifies an additional 133 reports with more than a “Retain the report requirement” assessment. Some assessments recommend reports to be (1) consolidated, (2) to have the frequency between reports lengthened (e.g., annual to biennial submission); (3) to remove recipients.

In this report, the report assessments recommend the repeal of laws relating to the State Aircraft Pooling Board. It also recommends the repeal, or re-enactment in another part of state law, statutes relating to the Criminal Justice Policy Council. Also included are recommendations that those sections of the Health & Safety Code, the Human Resources Code, the Family Code, and other codes relating to agencies providing health and human service functions to the people of the state be amended to reflect the current structure of the Health and Human Services Commission and its departments.

Reporting to the Legislature

The legislature is a statutory recipient of many of the listed reports in this report. In addition, however, members of the legislature must be informed about the availability of other reports and be provided a copy on request. Preparing agencies should pay close attention to these provisions of the Government Code:

§ 2052.002. Distribution of Publications to Legislators. (a) To avoid waste in the duplication and distribution of state agency publications, a state agency that issues a publication relating to the work of the agency and distributes the publication to members of the legislature shall send to each member before distributing the publication a written notice to determine whether the member wants to receive the publication.

(b) The state agency shall include with the notice a brief written summary of the publication.

(c) A member who elects to receive the publication shall notify the state agency.

(d) This section does not apply to a report that is required by law.

(e) In this section, "state agency" means:

(1) a department, commission, board, office, or other agency that is in the executive branch of state government and that was created by the constitution or a statute of this state;

(2) a university system or institution of higher education as defined by Section 61.003, Education Code; or

(3) the supreme court, the court of criminal appeals, a court of appeals, or the Texas Judicial Council.

§ 2052.0021. Distribution of Reports to Legislators. (a) In this section, "state agency" has the meaning assigned by Section 2052.002.

(b) Notwithstanding other law, a state agency report required by law may be made available to members of the legislature only in accordance with this section.

(c) A state agency shall make each report required by law available to members of the legislature in an electronic format determined by the Texas Legislative Council. The agency shall promptly send a suitable printed copy of the report to a member of the legislature at the request of the member.

(d) At the time a report required by law is ready for distribution outside the state agency, the agency shall send written notice to each member of the legislature that the report is available. The agency shall send the notice by mail or, if it is acceptable to the member, electronically. The notice must briefly describe the subject matter of the report and state:

(1) the manner in which the member may obtain the report electronically; and

(2) that the agency will send a printed copy of the report to the member at the request of the member.

(e) This section does not affect the duty of a state agency to directly send a printed copy of a report to an officer or committee of the legislature if other law specifically requires that the report be sent to that officer or committee, and the agency is not required to comply with this section before sending the report to that officer or committee.

State Publications Depository Program

State law requires that copies of many of the reports listed in this report must be submitted to the State Publications Depository Program of the Texas State Library and Archives Commission. We encourage preparing agencies to become familiar with these requirements. See Government Code, §§ 441.101-441.103 and 441.1035; and the Texas Administrative Code, Title 13, §§ 3.1-3.4 and 3.6-3.8.

Required Reports

Guide to Required Reports

Preparing Agency – The name of the agency, institution of higher education, or other state entity required by law to prepare the report. The rider that requires the commission to prepare the report specifies that the general public will be among the recipients. For that reason, the report does not use the agency numbers assigned by the state comptroller, since most members of the public are not familiar with those numbers. This section of the report is arranged alphabetically by the preparing entity based on the Comptroller's Manual of Accounts alphabetization which may have slight variations from the 2007 and 2009 versions of this report.

Reports that are required to be filed by more than one state entity are found under the following alphabetical headings:

- Higher Education Institutions, All
- Public Community/Junior Colleges, All
- State Agencies (except for Higher Education Institutions), All
- State Agencies and Higher Education Institutions, All

Report Title – The title of the report. Since state law rarely establishes the precise name of a report, the title should be regarded as an approximation of what the report may actually be called.

Legal Authority – A citation to law or rule that requires the preparation and submission of the report. Although some citations refer to subsections of a section, users should consult the full section in order to understand the context of the requirement.

Report Number – This report derives from a Microsoft Access[®] database program. The number of a listed report is that assigned by the database. Use of this number will allow the commission and the advisory committee to easily locate and edit the various fields of a required report.

Description – A description, often condensed, of the required contents of the report, derived from the actual wording of the statute requiring the report. In some instances, in which the information that must be in the report is extensive, we refer users to the statute itself. In all cases, however, preparing and receiving agencies and other users of the report should consult and read all of the cited statute. Bracketed language in the description section adds additional information about the report that should assist in the assessment of its usefulness.

Recipients – The entities that by law must receive the report.

Assessment –This field contains a recommendation that the report requirement be repealed, that it be retained as is, or that it be retained with amendments to law regarding its recipient(s), frequency, or contents.

Assessment: The 79th Legislature enacted two laws amending Government Code, § 552.274(b). The amendment that was passed first (Session Laws, Chapter 329) set the due date at before the 30th day after the date on which a regular session of the legislature convened and provided that the reporting requirement could be satisfied by posting the report on an agency's open records page or another easily accessible page on the agency's website. Under this amendment the office of the attorney general would have to troll agency websites to gather information for that office's biennial report on the cost of copies for public information. The second amendment (Session Laws, Chapter 716) made the original requirement applicable to all state agencies and institutions of higher education. While there is a clear conflict here, and in such instances the last-enacted amendment prevails, the first amendment should be repealed and Government Code, § 552.274, amended to provide that the attorney general should continue to issue a biennial report by posting it to that agency's website by March 1 of each even-numbered year, that each agency report as required in subsection (b) not later than December 1 of each even-numbered year, and that each agency publish its report on its website by March 1 of each odd-numbered year.

Report No: 1504		Due Date: By December 1, 2000
The Attorney General, in coordination with the Texas Department of Human Services and the Comptroller of Public Accounts, shall study the use of an existing electronic benefits transfer system to determine the advisability of and method for implementation of a debit card child support system. If it is determined that such a system is feasible and cost-effective, these agencies shall begin implementation of such a system. The agencies shall report on the study.
[Presumptively, the Texas Health and Human Services Commission is the successor to the Texas Department of Human Services in terms of this statute. For that reason, the Texas Health and Human Services Commission is shown as the preparer in this report.]
