

For financial aid administrators and deans at undergraduate and graduate public colleges and universities:

HRSA's School-Administered Loan Programs

Introduction

The Health Resources & Services Administration (HRSA) offers funding through four loan programs to undergraduate and graduate schools. Schools then offer these need-based loans to students pursuing a health professions degree. Each loan is long-term and low interest.

Students then deliver health care to people who lack access to primary health care services upon completing their medical education.

HRSA school-administered loan programs and eligible medical areas of study:

- Loans for Disadvantaged Students (LDS)
 - Allopathic/Osteopathic
 - Podiatry
 - Dentistry
 - Optometry
 - Pharmacy
 - Veterinary
- Health Professions Student Loans (HPSL)
