

This data analysis on the possession of identity documents results from two complementary approaches:

- Assessment of displacement areas (Key Informant level) : These assessments allow to identify areas (host families and displacement sites) where the possession of identity documents (IDs) is either high or low. This approach informs the prioritization of areas where assistance on IDs' issuance is most needed.
- Household Surveys : These surveys allow to collect granular information on household level. Whereas the first methodology informs prioritization of areas, surveys allow from a representative sample to have the proportion of households possessing or not IDs. This eventually allowing to define the number of potential beneficiaries of assistance of IDs' issuance.

Keys Results

IDPs on sites have less access to IDs compared to those in host families

5,071 displaced households on sites (20,300 persons) do not have IDs

The lack of IDs is particularly significant in 23 sites (please refer to page 3)

I. POSSESSION OF IDENTITY DOCUMENTS WITHIN INTERNALLY DISPLACED HOUSEHOLDS, RETURNEES (FORMER IDPs) AND HOST COMMUNITY HOUSEHOLDS

(Data collected in October 2023 from 1,087 households including 421 internally displaced households (208 in host families shelter and 213 in sites), 348 returnees formerly IDPs and 318 household from Host Communities (HCs).

- Yes, all household members currently possess valid ID documents.
- No, some of the household members do not possess any ID documents.
- Yes, but they do not have currently the ID documents in their possession.
- Rather not answer.
- Do not know.

Internally Displaced households in sites

Internally Displaced households in host families

Among Internally Displaced Households interviewed, 22% didn't have IDs. By disaggregating their host locations, results indicate that the availability of IDs is lower in households in sites compared to those living host families : 28% of internally displaced households in sites and 15% in host families do not have identity documents.

Considering that sites in the PAPMA host 18,110 households, these results therefore indicate that 5,071 of them don't have IDs (20,300 persons, considering that on average, an internally displaced household is composed of 4 persons, according to data from these surveys).
