By MOLLIE WALKER

The bottom-six carousel of healthy scratches continued to spin on Wednesday, when Jonny Brodzinski was the odd man out this time around against the Devils.

After the Rangers put forth an uninspiring performance in the previous game, head coach Peter Laviolette opted to inject the lineup with some guaranteed energy by plugging Matt Rempe back in after scratching the 6-foot-8 ½ forward in the previous three contests.

Rempe, as usual, did not disappoint.

Keeping his personal trend going, Rempe earned his third game misconduct against the Devils this season after an old-school-hockey line brawl broke out off the opening faceoff.

RANGERS NOTES

“I would like to have players ready for the playoffs,” Laviolette said before the Rangers beat the Devils 4-3 at the Garden. “I would like to have guys where they’re not sitting out the entire seven games through the entire lineup. And I don’t think that anybody should. Our guys have played well enough that everybody deserves to play. But again, I can’t. I’m going to have to put only 18 skaters down tonight.”

Despite the fact that Rempe has consistently given the Blueshirts a kinetic boost when he’s played, the history between the 21-year-old rookie and the Devils had to have been considered before this decision was made.

After getting thrown out for leveling Nathan Bastian — who has been sidelined ever since — on Feb. 22, Rempe got ejected again for a high hit on Jonas Siegenthaler on March 11. The second incident earned him a four-game suspension.

The Devils’ Kurtis MacDermid finally got to drop the gloves with Rempe, who finished with 47 penalty minutes, two fights and three game mis-

Laviolette juggles bottom-six again

SHORT NIGHT: Matt Rempe was back in the lineup Wednesday night after three straight healthy scratches. His night didn’t last long though as he received a game misconduct for his role in the opening melee.

conducts in 5:03 of ice time in three games in the Battle of the Hudson this season.

This past weekend in Arizona, Laviolette noted that sometimes the Rangers’ opponent will factor into his lineup decisions. He gave the example of wanting the Will Cuyllé-Barclay Goodrow-Jimmy Vesey line together against the Avalanche.

While part of it might be about the opposition, Laviolette is still finalizing his playoff lineup and analyzing different looks in the bottom-six. Should an injury arise, Laviolette has several different combinations that the players would be familiar with.

The top-six has remained intact since Jack Roslovic was acquired to slot onto the right wing of the top line next to Chris Kreider and Mika Zibanejad. The Artemi Panarin-Vincent Trocheck-Alexis Lafreniere unit has been together since Filip Chytil went down 10 games into the season.

Laviolette doesn’t foresee any plans to limit the ice time of his top players as part of load management ahead of the playoffs.

“We’re playing every other day now,” he said. “There’s plenty of opportunity for rest. I don’t know if somebody going from 22 minutes to 19 minutes is going to be a huge deal. We’re going to play the game to win the game. And then we’ll get the rest that we need in order to be successful in the next game.”

➤ Erik Gustafsson returned to the lineup Wednesday for the first time since absorbing an elbow to the head from the Panthers’ Sam Reinhart.

After missing four consecutive games with an upper-body injury, the Swedish defenseman returned to his usual post on the bottom pair alongside Braden Schneider.

Ex-Knick Flynn drops 50 in loss

Staff and wire report

Maybe Malachi Flynn should have been the headline player in the Knicks-Pistons trade in February that sent Quentin Grimes to Detroit and brought Bojan Bogdanovic and Alec Burks to New York.

Flynn, who scored a total of 31 points in 14 appearances with the Knicks after being acquired in the deal that brought OG Anunoby in from Toronto, poured in a career-high 50 for Detroit on Wednesday night in Atlanta — all be it in a losing effort.

Jalen Johnson had 28 points, 14 rebounds and 11 assists for his first career triple-double to lead the Hawks as they clinched a berth in the Eastern Conference play-in tournament.

Flynn, whose previous career high was 27, was 18-for-25 from the floor and 9-for-12 at the line. The 50 points was a franchise record for a reserve. He also had a season-high six rebounds, five assists and five steals in 34 minutes.

The Pistons have lost 10 of their last 11 games.

“Right now, it’s tough because at the end of the day you want to win,” Flynn said. “But it does feel good to kind of take in the moment. I’m sure a couple of days from now, it will feel really good.”

Flynn said it was the first time he scored 50 at any level.

“I almost did in high school. I had 49 and my coach took me out. I still have a grudge,” he said, according to The Athletic.
