INCOME AND WITHHOLDING INFORMATION RETURNS AND FILING METHODS

This publication discusses New Mexico's requirements for filing annual income and withholding statements electronically through the Department's Taxpayer Access Point (TAP) or the Combined Federal/State Filing Program, or by a paper filing. It addresses obligations of employers, payers, remitters of oil and gas proceeds, pass-through entities, and gambling establishment operators.

Businesses that are required to withhold New Mexico income tax for individuals must file annual income and withholding statements for each individual. The withholding statements for employee wages, pensions and annuities, and gambling winnings are due the last day of January following the tax year of the statement. The due dates for the withholding statements for oil and gas proceeds and pass-through entities are described later in this publication.

Please Note: In tax year 2019, the Taxation and Revenue Department (Department) began requiring electronic filing of annual income and withholding statements for employers who have 25 or more employees. Electronic submissions not filed through the Combined Federal/State Filing Program can be filed through TAP at <https://tap.state.nm.us>.
